SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY

Reported weekly for the Ledger.

Our Artificial Lenses—Why Crowds Attract Lightning—Perfumed Butterflies—A Safe Volatile Solvent—Another Form of Oxygen—Bedbugs The Carriers of Leprosy—By Long Distance Wireless—Broad Crumb Statuary.

The rapid acceleration of scientific progress is a striking feature of recent history. Whether this is due to increased power evolved in the human intellect was considered by Principal E. H. Griffiths, in his late British Association address, but he concluded that it would take a bold man to assert that the mind is more powerful than in the days of Homer, Pericles and Archimedes. He finds that the mystery may be explained by the extension of our senses by mechanical appliances. The bolometer and electric coherer have increased the range of our vision a thousand-fold, and the electroscope and the galvanometer have extended our sight and touch until we can detect an electron. By the many instruments supplying the deficiencies in our faculties, we go forward confidently where previously all was dark.

The human breath has been found to be a fair conductor of electricity, a spark from a Wimshurst machine being longer in breathed than in pure air. Investigating further, Dufour has concluded that the lung and skin exhalations sensibly increase the leakage from an electrically charged body, and it is suggested that the vapors rising above a flock of sheep or cattle may explain the tendency of lightning to strike the huddled animals.

Certain butterflies have marked odors—some good, some bad. Dr. F. A. Dixey, a British entomologist, mentions a white butterfly of England that has the fragrant scent of lemon verbena, and has noted many species in Africa with such odors as those of chocolate, vanilla and various flowers. The agreeable odors belong to males, being a charm to attract females. The offensive odors, shared by both sexes, are protective, repelling enemies.

Carbon tetrachloride is being made an important new product in France, chemical works at Montiers in Savoy especially having undertaken its production on a large scale. It is a colorless, mobile liquid, like petroleum in appearance, and has the composition of about 92 per cent of chlorine to 8 per cent of carbon. It can be profitably made only where chlorine is an industrial residue, as in the production of soda or potash by the electrolytic method. It boils at 77 degrees C., is entirely volatilized without odor, and is so stable that it does not attack metals, fabrics, or colors, even at high temperatures. It is uninflamable and incombustible. It dissolves all fats, and it is expected to take the place of such extremely dangerous solvents as carbon sulphide, benzine, chloroform, alcohols and ether. It dissolves certain gums and resins, making it probably available in varnish manufacture.

A new modification of oxygen seems to have been discovered by Dr. Erich Ladenburg. From the purest of oxygen, developed by electrolysis of boiled potassium hydrate, he prepares liquid ozone, and this he allows to vaporize into a vacuum, obtaining nearly pure ozone gas, which has a deep blue color in a thickness of eight inches. The absorption spectrum shows five new lines that do not belong to ozone. They always appear when the liquid ozone is allowed to vaporize, and the gas to which they belong can be separated. The molecular weight is higher than that of ozone.

A novel charge is brought against the common bedbug (Cimer lectularius) by Dr. W. J. Goodhue, medical superintendent of the Molokai Leprosy Settlement, who regards it as a chief agent in spreading leprosy. It is believed to have greater influence than the goat, for it comes noiselessly and during the patient's sleep, and bedding among lepers is too little disinfected. After long research, Dr. Goodhue has demonstrated the presence of the bacillus of leprosy in the mosquito (Culex pungens) as well as in the bedbug.

A message from Mars, which at cannon-ball speed would take several centuries to reach us, would get here in five minutes on rays of light. At the inconceivable velocity of this light-wave telegraphy, a message was started from the constellation Perseus about the time Jamestown was settled; it flashed along day and night at 186,000 miles per second, while the American colonies were slowly gaining a foothold, while they grew into an independent nation, while the nation passed through the bloodiest struggle in history, and it was still rushing toward us sixteen billion miles every day when Dewey's guns proclaimed the nation a world power and Jamestown was nearing the close of its third century. Then, on Feb. 21, 1901, the signal was seen. The apparition was called Nova Persei by the startled astronomers, it proved the brightest of all recorded temporary stars except one, its fluctuations were the greatest ever observed, and there was reason for calling it the most wonderful of all stars. Its maximum brightness was reached on Feb. 24, when its light had increased 100,000 times in two days. It fell off a third on the following day, and this was followed by strange fluctuations, while a little later a nebulous ring formed and spread outward at the velocity of light. The message so received, as interpreted by Kapleyn and Wilson, is a marvelous chapter of cosmical history. It tells that three centuries

Bad Indeed.
Losing flesh is indeed a bad sign. Take Scott's Emulsion for it. For weak indigestion, for defective nourishment, for consumption, take Scott's Emulsion. It restores flesh because it strikes to the cause of the loss.

The Rise in the River.
It is little short of astonishing to see how little water is required to float the southern river steamers, a boat loaded with perhaps a thousand bales of cotton slipping along contentedly where a boy could wade across the stream. Once, however, the Chattahoochee got too low for even her light draft commerce, and at Gunboat shoals a steamer grounded. As the drinking water on board needed replenishing, a deck hand was sent ashore with a couple of water buckets. Just at this moment a northern traveler approached the captain of the boat, and asked him how long he thought they would have to stay there.

"Oh, only until that man gets back with a bucket of water to pour into the river," the captain replied. Presently the deck hand returned, and the stale water from the cooler was emptied overboard. Instantly, to the amazement of the traveler, the boat began to move.

"Well, if that doesn't beat thunder!" he gasped.
The fact was that the boat, touching the bottom, had acted as a dam, and there was soon backed up behind her enough water to lift her over the shoal and send her on down the stream.—Harper's Weekly.

A Remarkable Career.
General Sam Houston was not only a great Texan, but probably the most striking and commanding figure which has yet appeared in the public life of the far southwest—born in Virginia, taken to Tennessee at an early age, whence, while yet in his teens, he went to war with Andrew Jackson against the Creek Indians; desperately wounded in the battle of the Horseshoe Bend; adjutant general of Tennessee; a representative in congress from that state; governor of Tennessee in his youth; married, separated from his wife in two months, resigning immediately as governor, self exiled for years among the Cherokee Indians, emigrating to Texas in 1832; member of the convention of 1836, which declared Texas to be an independent republic; general and commander in chief of the army which achieved independence at San Jacinto; twice president of the republic, United States senator and governor of the state.—C. A. Culberson in Scribner's.

John Doe Proceedings.
"John Doe" proceedings were abolished by law in Great Britain in 1852. Previous to that time John Doe had figured in the old fashioned ejectment action for the recovery of the possession of land, together with damages for the wrongful withholding thereof. For various reasons of convenience and history dating from the reign of Edward III. A did not proceed against B directly in such a case. Instead A delivered to B an entirely false statement from the fictitious "John Doe" that A had devised the land to "John" for a term of years, and "John" had been ousted from it by the equally fictitious "Richard Roe." Then Richard informed B that he was not going to defend the action himself, but B must do it, and so on. Occasionally, by way of variety, "John Doe" gave place to one "Goodtitle."

Columbia River Thrice Named.
The Columbia river has had three names. It was first called the Oregon. Afterward it was called the St. Rogue, but when it was discovered by Robert Gray in 1792 it was given the name of his vessel, the Columbia, in place of the two floating appellations, Oregon and St. Rogue. According to Whitney, the original name of the river was the Orejon, "big ear," or "one that has big ears," the allusion being to the custom of the Indians who were found in its region of stretching their ears by boring them and crowding them with ornaments.

Why Is It?
Here is a question in naval science which is to the average sailor man a riddle unsolved. Take a vessel of, say, 2,500 tons; place on it a cargo of 3,500 tons. This gives you a total of 6,000 tons. Hitch a little tug to this vessel, and she will rank the big craft about the rate of six or eight knots an hour. Now put the tug's machinery in the big vessel. It won't move her half a knot an hour. Why is this?

When You Take a Bath.
When drying off after a bath stand in the bathtub in water up to the ankles. When rubbed with coarse towels until the body is all aglow, step out and wipe the feet. This prevents that uncomfortable chilly feeling experienced if one steps immediately out of a bathtub full of water on to the bath mat.

CITY OFFICIAL PAPER.

Official Paper of Amador co.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 14, 1906

Official Fees.

Fees were collected in the clerk's office during the month of August as follows:

New cases	$ 7.00
Clerk's fees	10.25
Superior court—civil	23.00
Probate	20.00

Total $60.75

In the recorder's office the total fees for August amounted to $79. This makes a total of $139.75 as the sum total turned into the treasury from fees during last month. The sheriff's office, under the manipulation of the legislators, has ceased to be a source of income from fees. In times past these offices were not only self sustaining, but contributed largely toward meeting the expenses of local government in other branches. Now there is not a local office in the county that comes any way near being self-sustaining. And this is one of the main causes of the heavy increase of tax rates of late years. It is not the only cause, we admit. Still, it has had an important bearing in this direction. The cost of recording documents, the determination of civil litigation—that is the settlement of private disputes, also of serving processes in civil actions, all of which should be borne by litigants, is as a matter of fact, being borne by the general taxpayers. There is nothing righteous about this. Why should A. pay for the settlement of a dispute B. has with his neighbor C? Why should not the party who is adjudged to be in the wrong pay the costs of both sides. That is the policy of the law. It is certainly not the outcome of the laws as they are now framed.

We are not favorably impressed with the argument that the touchstone of a sheriff's qualifications for that office is the number of criminals he has landed behind prison walls. We regard that as a very doubtful compliment, at best. A far better standard of efficiency would be the few sent to state prison. The first standard rests on the fact of crime abounding in our midst; the last named may be the result of an absence of crime. The latter condition is far the more healthful from the taxpayers' standpoint. They prefer a sheriff whose record causes the criminal element to give the county a wide berth; who gathers the offender in when crime is committed. If lawbreakers are shipped away in unusual numbers it argues that the criminal class are not afraid of the officers whose duty it is to uphold the law. No county should feel proud of the record of having the greatest number of inmates in the state prisons according to population. Amador certainly is not hankering after that sort of notoriety.

C. H. McKinney has been nominated by the republican district convention at Santa Cruz for state senator in this senatorial district. There was no opposing candidate. The nominee has served in the state legislature for two terms, as assemblyman of the eleventh district, comprising the counties of Amador, Calaveras, Alpine and Mono. The senatorial district comprises the same counties with El Dorado added. The district is republican by fully 500 on a strict party vote. With the exception of El Dorado every county is strongly republican. But even in the state and national issues involved in a senatorial fight it is perilous to depend wholly on party majority.

In these days of rush and hurry courtesy is often forgotten. In the mad, pell-mell rush of our life little things are done to offend that we rather remained undone. A hastily eaten meal and its resultant headache may cause us social or financial loss. The wise man or woman is the one who relieves little ills of this sort by a little dose of Kodol for dyspepsia. It digests what you eat and puts your stomach back into shape. Sold by T. W. Kuhser.

City taxes will become delinquent on the first Monday in November. State and county taxes are delinquent the last Monday in that month. Property holders must bear this in mind. The people do not appear to understand this matter, and unless it is impressed upon them between now and November, the city delinquent list is apt to be much larger than it otherwise would be. Pay your city taxes at once. The marshal is now making out the tax receipts, and every property holder should interview him within the next two or three weeks.

H. E. Potter of Plymouth, has been mentioned as a possible candidate before the republican convention for coroner and public administrator. R. W. Ketcham of Jackson, is also mentioned. The latter was until lately identified with the democratic party, but at the last presidential election he cast his lot with the republicans, and proposes to stay with them hereafter. Thos Lemm, also of Jackson, is talked of for coroner.

The republican state convention accomplished something in the direction of the purification of politics when it adopted a plank in its platform recommending the passage of a law requiring that all party candidates for elective offices shall be nominated by direct primary.

The Crawford method of nominating local candidates has been in vogue in several counties in California for a number of years, and seems to, have given such satisfaction that it has been adhered to ever since it was started. Under this system candidates are voted for at the primaries of the respective parties, the one receiving the highest votes for each office becomes the regular nominee. This does away in a great measure with bossism. There can be no trading, which is the great objection to convention methods. It does away to a great extent with conventions. The only objection against the system is that it makes it more expensive for the candidates, who are thereby required to make two canvasses—one to secure the nomination, and the other to secure election. He has to get around among his party adherents first, and then make a second canvass among the voters generally for support at the polls. However, this is a trifling objection when placed alongside of the crying evils it is designed to cure.

George Snyder, of Calaveras county has received the republican nomination for assemblyman in this district. He is a young man of much promise, and a brother of W. G. Snyder, the republican candidate for district attorney in this county. The selection is a good one, and the candidate will doubtless receive the support of his party, and be elected by a handsome majority.

BIG SAWMILL INDUSTRY.

From our Aukum Correspondent.

Your correspondent has just arrived from the vicinity of the Dog Town mill in El Dorado county, owned by the door and sash factory situated in Oakland. They are also owners of the narrow gauge railroad running from Diamond Springs to the above mentioned mill.

The company is composed of five men. They have a modern mill, equipped with the latest improved machinery. None of the old fashioned circular saws are operated in this mill. They are entirely band saws. The first saw cuts the log up in boards of all widths according to the size of the log. They are dropped upon revolving rollers which take them to the edger saws, and the edges ripped off from them. They run onto an endless revolving chain, that takes them to the second great band saw that rips them in two. To be more explicit a two inch board a foot wide arrives, it passes through the band saw and becomes two one inch boards instead of what it was. The band saws are endless saws, from six to ten inches wide revolving upon a pulley, and going with ceaseless and amazing rapidity all day long. As the lumber passes through the last band saw it comes out all widths and all sizes, as it comes to the saw, being ripped in two. It is then graded by a man known as the "grader" who has each piece assigned to its proper station. The common class goes to the yard, where it is piled in huge square piles ready for drying in the sun. The better class is taken by the truckmen to where two endless chains running parallel with each other, and about twelve feet apart, revolves constantly and slowly. The lumber is thrown on to the chains which carry it up the incline to a huge steam drying house, whose capacity is something near a million feet. Each day the foreman told me they took fifty thousand feet of lumber from the kiln, and loaded it on the cars for shipment. The logging is done in two ways, by donkey engines and railroad. The railroad runs into the woods about three miles, and the logs are brought into the mill on cars. The other methods are done by three donkey engines situated a half mile apart. The "bull" engine as it is called, is within one hundred feet of the mill. It is a huge engine and pulls the logs when dropped by the smaller engine for more than a mile. They drop from the chute into a pond of water, in order to wash the dirt from the surface of the log that has collected on them in being pulled over the ground and down the chute. Then a side engine that is operated just behind the sawyer, pulls it longitudinally forward when it is caught up by the bull-wheel, and rolled on to the carriages, where it is ready for the humming band saw that cuts it into lumber. When one side is ripped off the "nigger" as it is called, rises as if by magic appearing out of the floor, and reaching out a great huge iron arm bent down in to a hook at the point, grabs the log as if with human intelligence, pulls it over, forces it back to its place, and drops appearing into quietude and rest. The capacity of the mill is 90 thousand feet per day. The company built their own cars, with the exception of the ironwork of the car itself. The band saws are changed about every four hours. The teeth are ground sharp by an emery wheel connected with a unique piece of machinery made expressly for the purpose. The saw is put teeth upward into the machine. The machine is adjusted properly, the saw is put into its exact position, and the emery wheel placed exactly in front of the teeth. The operator starts the machine slowly to see that it is exactly right, and after being satisfied that it is right, starts the machine at full speed. The machine now is doing its work accurately, and as the emery wheel touches each point, the fire flies in brilliant sparks away from it. The operator takes a seat and watches languidly and leisurely, the machine that never makes a mistake.

We elsewhere publish the candidates cards of D. A. Patterson, for recorder; C. E. Jarvis, for assessor, and Geo. A. Gritton, treasurer, all democratic nominees. The treasurer and recorder have served the people, the later for one term, and the former for three successive terms. Jarvis is a new man, has never held a public office but is well known throughout the county.

Copies of the license ordinance of the City of Jackson in pamphlet form may be had at the Ledger office; price 15c. each.

Charley Sing, the well-known cook, having sold out his restaurant business in the Olympus Cafe, is open to engagement as cook at mine or boardinghouse: will take charge of kitchen department. Parties needing a first-class cook will please address him at Jackson. 1m

Transcript in Le Doux Case.

The lawyers for the defense of Mrs Emma Le Doux, now under sentence of death for murder in the first degree, are diligently employed in compiling a monster bill of exceptions preparatory to perfecting an appeal to the supreme court of California. This bill will probably be the largest ever presented in a like case in the courts of this county and the expense for printing the briefs alone will reach a sum close upon $1300. The appeal will by necessity save the life of Mrs Le Doux for many months after the 19th of October, the time set by Judge Nutter for her execution at San Quentin. Then, too, there is the consolation that the supreme court may step in at the final moment and by some means provide for a reduction of punishment.

The magnitude of the task of perfecting an appeal cannot be estimated without an understanding of the vast amount of evidence introduced into the great case. The court reporter's notes alone as they now stand transcribed cover over 500 pages of typewriting. The judgment roll, which includes the indictment of the grand jury, the instructions of the court and the affidavits, will all go into the great transcript. It is estimated that after the proposed bill of exceptions and the amendments are settled by the court with the addition of the judgment-roll the complete record of the case will cover some 700 pages of typewriting and 1400 pages when printed into transcript form, according to supreme court rules.

Thirty-two copies of this monster book must be printed, making in all 44,800 pages, not including indexes and covers that must pass through the hands of the printer. It is estimated that the great task will be completed and ready for filing during the early part of the year 1907. During the trial of the case Judge Nutter ruled upon a little over 1300 different matters presented in objections and otherwise by the attorneys to the cause.—Stockton Independent.

ago an invisible dark star traveling at great velocity ran into a dark nebula, that the star's surface was made white hot by the friction, but rapidly cooled, that the heating was partially renewed as stray nebulous wisps were penetrated, and that as the star's bright rays shot outward they lighted more and more of the previously dark nebula, which became visible for a little time. So far away was this collision that in four months the flash, traveling at light-speed across the line of sight, illuminated a stretch of nebula barely large enough to be perceived by the unaided eye of man.

Arrangements have been made to have a branch school for the smaller children at Kennedy Flat. It is a hardship for them to travel two miles to and from school during the winter months, and as there are enough children there to employ a teacher it is thought no more than right that they should have a school near their homes. #### A FATAL FEUD

Spiro Guirovich Shoots Jesus Accunio Near Drytown.

A case of apparently deliberate killing occurred near Drytown on Sunday evening last, the victim being Jesus Accunio, and his slayer Spiro Guirovich. Both parties lived in the vicinity of the Black Hills country near Drytown. They have been neighbors for many years, living a few hundred yards apart. Accunio was a married man, with a family. He raised chickens and garden stuff, and has managed to eke out a living in that way. His neighbor Guirovich is a single man, and has a great liking for dogs. His place is a sort of dog farm, not as a source of profit, but just because he has a fancy for these animals. The dogs, however, while a source of pleasure to their owner, were a cause of not a little annoyance to the neighbors and travelers. They would run after Accunio's chickens, and bark and annoy persons passing along the roadway. A pack of ten or fifteen dogs gave birth to many complaints. Guirovich, however, in spite of all protests, persisted in keeping this canine family. Ill feeling had existed between him and Accunio for several years, principally on account of the dogs. Moreover, Guirovich was not regarded in a friendly spirit by others. He was feared rather than otherwise. He did not work for wages, and he contrived to live by what he got in donations from others, more from fear, so it is claimed, than anything else.

Sunday afternoon Accunio, on going from his home to Drytown, passed Guirovich's place, and complained to the latter that his dogs had been chasing his chickens, and he wanted it stopped. Guirovich did not take the complaint kindly, and denied that his animals were annoying the chickens, and abused Accunio. The latter passed on to the village.

On his return, about 5 o'clock, he passed Guirovich's place, several dogs sprang out barking and yelping. He picked up some rocks and threw them at the curs, which had the effect of driving them off. Guirovich was greatly angered on account of stoning his dogs, and protested to Accunio. A few words ensued, the oshet being that Accunio threw one or more rocks at his neighbor, without doing any damage. Guirovich also engaged in rock throwing in return. Guirovich went into his house and got his shotgun, and Accunio passed along the road toward his home. After securing the gun which had evidently been loaded beforehand, the Austrian re-appeared, and concealed by some grape vines got to a point about 50 or 60 feet from Accunio, and deliberately fired at him. The charge—No. 7, bird shot—struck him in the face and chest, and he fell on the road and died almost instantly. One of the main arteries was severed. At such short range, the charge would penetrate with almost the same force as a bullet.

The slayer went the same evening to Amador City, and reported the shooting, and surrendered himself to the officers. Sheriff Norman and deputy H. E. Kay went over there that night, and took charge of the defendant, and brought him to the county jail.

Coroner Huberty went over on Monday, with sheriff Norman and Dr. Endicott, to hold an inquest and autopsy. The following were selected on the jury: J. E. Walton, P. Labadie, J. F. Donovan, M. F. Hoffes, G. W. Renn, Frank Clemens, Chris Andolichvich, W. Oelien, E. K. Giannini, S. J. Morrow. The only witness to the shooting was Lucio Accunio, a son of deceased, who accompanied him on the fatal night to Drytown. He testified as follows:

I was with my father about 5 o'clock on the evening of September 9. In passing Guirovich's, a dog came out after him; there were four dogs. My father picked up a rock and threw it at one of the dogs. Spiro Guirovich called him a vile name for so doing, and my father called him the same. Guirovich threw a rock at my father, and my father picked up a rock and threw at him and missed him. Guirovich did not have a gun at this time; my father was unarmed. Guirovich went to his house and got a shotgun, and shot deceased. I was about 15 feet from deceased when he was shot.

Dr. Endicott and Dr. W. A. Norman, the autopsy physicians, made an examination of the body in Drytown on September 10, and testified that the cause of death was hemorrhage due to a perforation of the arch of the aorta, one of the arteries leading from the heart. The jury found that deceased died from a gunshot wound inflicted by Spiro Guirovich with a shotgun. Deceased was 61 years of age, and a native of Mexico.

There were nine dogs belonging to the accused at the time of the occurrence. With Spiro in jail there was no one left to look after them; so the officers killed the animals that they found there, seven in all, two escaped.

Hearing set for September 22.

Fine Peaches.

Clark Courtwright brought to our office this week two samples of peaches, grown in his orchard on Stony creek, a couple of miles west of Jackson. One sample was of the freestone and the other clingstone variety. For size and flavor they are far above the average. The remarkable part of it is that they were gathered from trees planted only three years ago. He planted about 500 trees and with a little care they have in this short time been brought to yield abundantly. This year he has sold around Jackson between 400 and 500 boxes. The fruit commands a ready sale in the local market. In fact they were all spoken for before being picked, and he could have sold a much larger quantity if he had had them. The trees were carefully attended to and irrigated during the summer season at intervals. This experience serves to show what can be done in the way of fruit growing in this region. Stony creek is in the belt peculiarly adapted for fruit, and has perhaps exceptional advantages in this line. Still, there is plenty of land that might be made to yield a handsome profit in the cultivation of different fruits. The excellence of the product will always command a ready sale at profitable prices. With the extension of the railroad, the fruit growing business ought to show a rapid increase in the next few years.

For Wife Beating.

John Solari was given six months in the county jail by W. L. Rose on Monday last, for beating his wife. They live at Amador City, where the beating occurred. The penalty was without the alternative of imprisonment, so there is nothing for the accused to do but to serve out his time. Mrs. Solari was in Jackson Tuesday, still showing the marks of abuse, and consulted with an attorney about the commencement of divorce proceedings.

Off For New York.

Mrs. Chris Marella left Jackson yesterday morning for San Francisco. There she will join her husband, and in a day or two they will start for New York. Mr. Marella has been elected a delegate from a Croatian society in the city to a convention in New York, and Mrs. Marella will accompany him on the trip for a change. They will be gone about six weeks. It is probable after she returns that the family will move to San Francisco, although that matter has not been definitely decided as yet.

Admission Day Celebration.

Admission day, September 9, was celebrated with much eclat in Sutter Creek on the 8th instant, Saturday, by the Parlor of Native Sons of that town. Sutter Creek put on its holiday garb in grand style. The manner in which the town was decorated drew forth unstinted praise from all visitors. It seemed to be the aim to outdo all previous efforts, and they did so. The parade and floats were also greatly admired. The attendance from outside places was very satisfactory, Jackson as usual sending a vast throng to swell the gathering. There were probably more from the county seat than from all other outside towns put together. Charley Peters—the 82 year old pioneer of the days of '49"—was there in all his glory—the cynosure of all eyes. He was toggued out in pioneer style, with a coat said to be 45 years old—a relic of the distant past. Judge McLaughlin, of the courts of appeals, was the orator of the day, and made a very able address.

The afternoon sports consisted of a drilling contest, the first prize for which was won by Matt Thomas and Frank Fuller, $100; second prize Cassilegio and Cassassa, $25.

Riding tournament won by W. Kerr of Amador City.

The ball in the evening was largely attended. The band from Placerville furnished music for day and night. Everything passed off smoothly and satisfactorily. The expenses were heavy and barely came within the measure of the receipts.

More Pamphlets.

The Rev. F. A. Morrow, who recently moved from Jackson to Petaluma, has issued another pamphlet of over 60 pages, rehabilitating his grievances, and requesting the re-opening of his case by the M. E. conference. He says he will bring a damage suit for $50,000 unless the wrong that he claims has been done him is righted. The contents of the pamphlet are of the same general tenor as the one issued a year ago. A number of them have been distributed here. Nothing tending to throw any additional light on the anonymous letter business is disclosed. It is unfortunate that this matter is not allowed to die out. This latest piece of literature is not calculated to change the belief of any one who had previous formed an opinion concerning the subject.

Good for the cough, removes the cold, the cause of the cough. That's the work of Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar—the original laxative cough syrup. Contains no opiates. Sold by F. W. Rubser.

Won the Piano.

Miss Eva Leak won the prize piano offered by the Sierra Times for the most popular young lady in Amador county. The contest was decided last Friday evening. The piano was on exhibition in the Jackson Shoe Store on that day. Some lively voting was done at the eleventh hour. The winner received over 107,000 votes. There were some twenty contestants voted for in different parts of the county. None of the other candidates came near the winning mark at the wind-up. Miss Leak is receiving the congratulations of her many friends and acquaintances on her success. She is a resident of Jackson and a native of Amador county.

Mrs. Rosa Lagomarsini died in Stockton, on September 8. She was an old resident of Jackson. She was born in Italy, April 10, 1841, and married to Mr. Lagomarsini in 1861. They came to California in 1872. Mrs. Lagomarsini was taken to Stockton about six weeks ago, where she was treated at Clark's Sanitarium for nervous troubles. She was slowly recovering when a stroke of apoplexy brought her life to a close. Her remains were brought to this city Sunday. Deceased leaves to mourn her death one daughter, Louise Lagomarsini, four sons, Steve John, Amadeo and Antone, four sisters and two brothers. The funeral took place on Tuesday. Services were held in the Catholic church Tuesday morning, and the interment was in the Catholic cemetery of this city.

The Kissing of Aunt Agnes

[Original.]

I have a sister who is a deaf mute. Consequently I am familiar with the sign language. When I was a young fellow my brother John and I would frequently converse with our fingers in company when we did not care to be overheard. We lived in a suburban place, and, going to and from the city, we usually used this method of communication.

One afternoon when we were going home together, after taking our seats in the car, a young woman with two little children and a negro nurse came in, and, turning the back of a seat to face the one in the rear, they occupied both, the children and nurse in the seat facing the front, while the lady used the other, sitting next the passage-way, stacking the hand baggage near the window. This brought her face to face with John and me. She was very pretty and so young that we wondered that she could be the mother of the children. Then we heard one of them call her Aunt Agnes. She had scarcely been seated when I signaled John:

"Pretty enough to kiss, isn't she?"

"You bet."

"Wonder what station she gets off at?" I asked.

"Watch her ticket when the conductor comes round and you'll see."

"I've been trying to catch her eye to find out if she'll flirt, but she won't let me."

"Demure as a Quakeress."

"Just the kind of a girl I'd like to shock."

"Why don't you? We'll reach the tunnel pretty soon. Go over and kiss her in the dark."

"The trainman 'll light the lights."

"Bribe him not to."

I took the hint, and getting up went to the man in charge of the car and corrupted him, though it took a five dollar bill to do it. Then I sat down on the outside of the seat so that I could get out quickly. Aunt Agnes was in a beautiful position to be kissed, and all looked well for the dash except my courage, which was dribbling out as we approached the tunnel. It was a short one, not requiring more than forty seconds to go through, so I must act expeditiously. John, in order to stimulate me, bet me $25 that I would not do the kissing.

I watched the landmarks before reaching the tunnel, and as we came nearer my heart beat like a kettle drum. One after another familiar objects sped by and at last we plunged into darkness. I waited till the train got midway into the tunnel, then darted forward, put my arms around Aunt Agnes' neck and pressed my lips against hers. I expected a scream, but instead what was my surprise to feel two arms thrown around my neck. They clung to me so tightly that I was scarcely able to unwind them. I succeeded in doing so, however, and resumed my seat while it was still dark. A few moments later we shot out into the light.

By an effort I appeared unconscious, looking lazily out of the window. I felt my head pressed by John and turned my eyes to his. I will not attempt to describe the expression I saw there, but it was enough to convince me that something had gone wrong. I cast a quick glance at the place where Aunt Agnes had been sitting.

Horrors of horrors! There sat the black nurse.

Aunt Agnes was looking straight out of the window. But what a change from that demure look she had worn till we reached the tunnel. She was making spasmodic efforts to keep back her mirth; her eyes were drawn down a horriple, and every now and then a convulsive ripple that she could not control swept over her. As for the nurse, she looked as if she had been highly honored at being kissed by a white man.

And I, what shall I say for myself? No apple hanging from a topmost bough in the sunlight was ever redder than my whole face. Oh, that I could sink under the seats and hide myself from those twinkling eyes that now occasionally turned my way! But no, I must stay where I was, till the train reached my station, and, though it was a matter of four or five miles, it seemed fifty.

Aunt Agnes left the train at the station next before mine. By this time her merriment had come under control, and as she passed out nothing but a faint smile hovered over her beautiful lips. John insisted that I had won the bet and wished to pay the amount, but I told him that if ever he mentioned the circumstance again it would be a cause of war.

Of course I left no stone unturned to learn who was Aunt Agnes. I found that she was a teacher in a deaf mute school. I had been chatting with John about her, not dreaming that she was more familiar with the sign language than either of us. I made a vow. I declared that I would touch neither wine nor tobacco till I had taken the taste of the nurse's kiss from my lips by an antidote. That antidote should be a kiss from the lips of Aunt Agnes.

I made the lady's acquaintance and was received with an amused smile. I paid her a great deal of attention, watching for an opportunity to snatch a kiss. She seemed to read my design, for she was always on her guard. I stole up on her, as I supposed, unawares. I watched for her to fall asleep in my presence, all to no purpose.

That was some time ago. I now get all the kisses from those dewy lips I care for. But somehow they have never entirely obliterated the taste of my kiss in the dark.

F. A. MITCHEL.

"A Bare Bodkin."

"Bare" means "mere" as well as "naked," and I cannot doubt that by "bare bodkin" Shakespeare meant "mere bodkin," the point of the passage being with how contemptibly small an instrument we could, if we chose, put an end to life and all its bother. "Bare" probably was used instead of "mere" for the sake of effective alliteration. (Cf. with Hamlet's "bare bodkin" Richard II.'s "little pin," III, 2, 169.) For "bare" in the sense of "mere" I need cite only "bare imagination of a feast."—London Notes and Queries.
